A Short and Imperfect Sketch of the Blair Family Dating Back Some Generations.

To the Kinfolks far and near, whose valuable help has made these records possible, greetings and thanks.

Doubtless you will find errors not due to the printer, but these pages have been prepared faithfully and conscientiously with what data could be obtained.

Be lenient and kindly in your judgment.

May these records help to more closely bind into one great family all the descendants of the Blairs of Scotland.

MRS. MINNIE B. REYNOLDS, Historian.

To the Friends and Relatives who have the opportunity of obtaining this Genealogy, I have taken the liberty of extending our sincere appreciation for the untiring efforts of our Historian, who has made it possible for us all to have this valued record.

Without some one who was deeply interested and with no small amount of ambition, this could not have been brought about.

I am satisfied that in the years to come, this book will be a treasure in every household where owned.

Just a word in regard to the young men of the family who are in the service. It was impossible to obtain the names of them for our honor roll, but we are proud of you and may God care for you that you may return safely to those loved ones left behind who will back you to the finish.

MERTON P. KNAPP,

President.

Our native land was Scotland.

This land almost cut across by narrow and deep arms of the sea, with its many mountains, its towering cliffs, its stretches of gorse and heather developed a strong, independent, God-fearing people. From the natural features of the land the inhabitants were so separated that they differed in many ways, and in dialects. According to locality they were divided into Highland and Lowland Scotch. These great divisions were divided into clans, and again the clans were divided.

The Blairs belong to the Scotch Highlanders, to some division of a clan, but as the clan has not yet been determined, we cannot know our plaid.

In early Scotch history the Blair's figure largely, and in the wars which for a long time disrupted their land. In these wars they took a prominent part and are honorably mentioned. There was a Colonel Blair, a Blair Castle, and a Blair Coat of Arms.

Blair is a Celtic word which means a cleared field.

The Blairs of Scotland have always been prominent in civil and religious affairs, men of sterling worth, and their motto is: "I love proving or testing." We are proud of our heritage and will do well always to prove and test people and things and hold to the noble and the worthy, and reject all which tends to pull us down.

In all Scotch history we do not find a dishonorable or unworthy Blair, which emphasizes the value of the motto to all generations past, present and to come, to "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." Our branch of the Blairs removed from Scotland to the north of Ireland in the early part of Cromwell's reign. They with other of their countrymen appear to have formed a colony retaining the peculiar religious and political views of their own country.

After about two years in Ireland, David Blair, with his wife and eleven children, in 1720 embarked for the American Colonies.

They arrived at Boston, Mass., the same year, and in a few months removed to Worcester County, which became their home.

The children of David, were Matthew, James, John, William, Robert, Joseph, Sarah, Dolly, Mary, Betsey and David.

According to dates, David must have been about forty years of age when he came to America. His children must have married and at the time of the Revolution, had sons of mature age to fight in this war. It is said, that one of the sons, John by name, who was a boy of seven years when he came to this country, later married an English lady, Ann Pepper. They had three sons in the Revolutionary War. Asa was shot in the leg in the battle of White Plains, but backing up to a fence he fired nine more times. He was recovering from his wound, in a hospital, when he was carried off by camp distemper.

His brother Joseph served through the Revolution. His brother James was a "Minute Man," kept his musket on the porch ready for use, also his knapsack, which his wife kept filled with fresh bread. Often he came from the field, seized musket and knapsack and was off without the loss of a moment.

Another son of this family was Aaron, a man of prodigious strength and size, and the only Blair of whom tradition speaks as a bachelor. Of the other children of John Blair, if there were any, we have no record. James of this family, was baptized in 1748 at Herdwicke, Mass., and in 1770, married Sarah Josslyn. They lived at Oakham, Mass., and there, with one exception, Joel, the names of his children are recorded.

The descendants of this James Blair we are able to trace with a reasonable degree of accuracy.
